As educators, we should provide as many year-round learning experiences as possible that reflect our students' intersecting identities along with the lessons that offer insights into others with whom they may not have a deep understanding or appreciation. The value of offering these mirrors and windows is well established and should be provided thoughtfully and consistently in our nation's classrooms.

Women's History Month began as a weeklong celebration of women's contributions to culture, history and society organized by the Education Task Force of the Sonoma County Commission on the Status of Women in 1978. In 1980, President Jimmy Carter issued the first presidential proclamation declaring the week of March 8 as National Women's History Week. President Carter stated: Understanding the true history of our country will help us to comprehend the need for full equality under the law for all of our people. The following year, the U.S. Congress passed a resolution establishing a national celebration. In 1987, the National Women's History Project was successful in convincing Congress to expand the event to the entire month of March.

While the custom of cultural monthly observances may seem out-of-date, please consider them as additional opportunities to highlight the achievements and contributions of a particular group of our citizenry in greater depth, a worthy goal. At a time when there is a critical need to promote acceptance, respect and harmony throughout our diverse communities, please consider engaging students in experiences that lead to a greater appreciation of the collective contributions made by others of similar, as well as differing, identities. Please also remember to provide adequate context to these accomplishments in light of the challenges our marginalized citizenry had to overcome to reach their goals. Hopefully, these learning experiences help students understand we are all woven into the rich cultural tapestry of humanity in this place we call America.
