As educators, we should provide as many year-round learning experiences as possible that reflect our students' intersecting identities along with the lessons that offer insights into others with whom they may not have a deep understanding or appreciation. The value of offering these mirrors and windows is well established and should be provided thoughtfully and consistently in our nation's classrooms.

Women's History Month began as a weeklong celebration of women's contributions to culture, history and society organized by the Education Task Force of the Sonoma County Commission on the Status of Women in 1978. In 1980, President Jimmy Carter issued the first presidential proclamation declaring the week of March 8 as National Women's History Week. President Carter stated: Understanding the true history of our country will help us to comprehend the need for full equality under the law for all of our people. The following year, the U.S. Congress passed a resolution establishing a national celebration. In 1987, the National Women's History Project was successful in convincing Congress to expand the event to the entire month of March.

While the custom of cultural monthly observances may seem out-of-date, please consider them as additional opportunities to highlight the achievements and contributions of a particular group of our citizenry in greater depth, a worthy goal. At a time when there is a critical need to promote acceptance, respect and harmony throughout our diverse communities, please consider engaging students in experiences that lead to a greater appreciation of the collective contributions made by others of similar, as well as differing, identities. Please also remember to provide adequate context to these accomplishments in light of the challenges our marginalized citizenry had to overcome to reach their goals. Hopefully, these learning experiences help students understand we are all woven into the rich cultural tapestry of humanity in this place we call America.

Diverse Literature Provides Windows, Mirrors, and Sliding Glass Doors

A window is a resource that offers you a view into someone else’s experience. A mirror is a story that reflects your own culture and helps you build identity. A sliding glass door allows the reader to enter the story and become a part of that world...It is critical to understand that students cannot truly learn about themselves unless they learn about others, as well. – Teacher Created Materials

Adapted from The Importance of Windows and Mirrors in Stories – PBS Education:

When thinking of windows, consider:	When thinking of mirrors, consider:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Who are my students?</li> <li>• What are their interests?</li> <li>• What do my students find curious?</li> <li>• What world knowledge can we build together?</li> <li>• What connections to prior knowledge can we make?</li> <li>• Through what ways can I learn different things about my students?</li> <li>• How may my students’ shared experiences lead to understanding and acceptance by their peers?</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• What more do I need to know about my students?</li> <li>• What are their funds of knowledge?</li> <li>• How does intersectionality live in our learning spaces?</li> <li>• How do my students see themselves?</li> <li>• What activities can I design to help students explore their identity/identities?</li> <li>• How can I prepare myself so I can best support students in this process?</li> <li>• What books and materials may I provide for my students to reflect their identities?</li> </ul>
